Ash from Mt. Bulusan blankets ...

MANILA, April 1 (AP) — A thick blanket of ash from Mount Bulusan in the Philippines' Luzon island region fell on the town of Bulusan and surrounding areas, forcing residents to evacuate their homes and businesses.

The eruption, which began at about 10 p.m. local time, sent a massive plume of ash and smoke rising into the sky, visible from several kilometers away. The ash fell in a thick layer, covering the town and surrounding areas.

Residents were ordered to evacuate their homes and businesses, and to move to a designated evacuation center. The evacuation center is a school building, which is being used as a temporary shelter for the displaced residents.

The eruption is the latest in a series of volcanic activities in the Philippines. Mount Bulusan is one of the most active volcanoes in the country, and has erupted several times in the past few years.

The Philippine Department of Science and Technology (DOST) is monitoring the eruption closely, and has issued warnings to the public to stay away from the volcano and its surrounding areas.

The eruption has caused significant damage to the town of Bulusan and surrounding areas. Many homes and businesses have been destroyed, and the town has been completely covered in ash. The eruption has also caused significant disruption to the local economy, as many businesses have been forced to close.

The Philippine Department of Science and Technology (DOST) is working to provide assistance to the affected residents, and to ensure that the eruption does not cause any further damage.

HAVE YOU EVER HEARD OF "SEE TV COMMERCIAL FOR DETAILS"?

Of course not. Because TV just doesn't allow you to include important details. You can try answering it in 30 seconds but chances are, you'll end up with very confused viewers. That's when the power of print comes in. Print ads and posters allow you to communicate effectively. They make your market read, understand and buy. So if you really want to get in your target, use posters and print ads for details.

There's more to print.

Death threats bound Aglipayan priests

By Christine Esguerra

The menacing voice of a priest in the Aglipayan Church in Manila has been heard in the provinces, threatening the lives of priests and laymen alike. The threats are believed to be the work of a group of extremists within the church, who are seeking to establish a theocratic state. The threats have caused a state of panic among the clergy and laity, and have led to the closure of churches in some areas. The Aglipayan Church, which is the second largest Christian denomination in the Philippines, has a long history of social and political activism. However, the recent threats have cast a shadow over its activities and have led to a loss of confidence among its members. The church leaders have expressed their concern and have called for a united front against the threats. They have also urged the government to take action to protect the lives of its citizens and to ensure the freedom of religious expression.

Death threats have been directed at priests and laymen in the Aglipayan Church, leading to a state of panic among the clergy and laity.

Top NPA leader in C. Luzon captured

The top leader of the New People's Army (NPA) in Central Luzon has been captured by government forces. The leader, who has been active in the region for several years, was found in a hideout in a rural area. The capture marks a significant blow to the NPA's operations in the region. The government forces, who have been conducting a series of operations to root out the NPA, have expressed their satisfaction with the capture. They have also announced that they will continue their efforts to bring down the NPA and its leaders. The NPA, which is a Marxist-Leninist organization, has been active in the Philippines since the 1970s. It has been responsible for a number of attacks and has been a major threat to the government. The capture of the top leader in Central Luzon is a major victory for the government and a setback for the NPA.

Is to spend P4M for new war games in Zamboanga

The Department of Defense (DOD) has announced that it will spend P4 million to purchase new war games for the Zamboanga Peninsula. The games are intended to improve the military's readiness and to provide a realistic training environment for the troops. The games will be used by the 1st Infantry Division, which is based in Zamboanga. The DOD has also announced that it will purchase new uniforms and equipment for the division. The purchases are part of a larger program to modernize the Philippine military and to improve its ability to respond to threats. The DOD has expressed its commitment to the defense of the Philippines and to the well-being of its citizens. It has also announced that it will continue to work with the other branches of the government to ensure the security and stability of the country.

Subotop

The Subotop, a new type of submarine, has been developed by the Philippine Navy. The submarine is designed to be small and agile, and is capable of operating in shallow waters. It is intended to be used for coastal defense and for the protection of the country's maritime interests. The Philippine Navy has expressed its interest in the Subotop and has announced that it will purchase a number of them. The submarine is a significant addition to the Navy's fleet and is expected to enhance its ability to protect the country's waters. The Navy has also announced that it will continue to develop new technologies and to improve its capabilities. It has expressed its commitment to the defense of the Philippines and to the well-being of its citizens. It has also announced that it will continue to work with the other branches of the government to ensure the security and stability of the country.

Opposition to 'retake' in Visayas growing

The opposition to the 'retake' of the Visayas region by the New People's Army (NPA) is growing. The NPA has been active in the region for several years, and has been responsible for a number of attacks. The government has been conducting operations to root out the NPA, but the opposition is still strong. The NPA has expressed its commitment to the 'retake' of the Visayas and has announced that it will continue its efforts. The government has also announced that it will continue its operations to root out the NPA. The opposition to the 'retake' is a major challenge for the government and the NPA. It is a reflection of the deep divisions within the Philippines and of the ongoing struggle for power. Republicans scramble to contain damage

Republicans are scrambling to contain the damage to their party's image following the recent election results. The party is facing a significant loss of support, and many are questioning the leadership of the current administration. In response, the party has launched a series of public relations campaigns aimed at restoring its reputation and winning back the support of its base. These efforts include holding town hall meetings, releasing statements from party leaders, and engaging in media interviews. The party is also working to address the concerns of its voters, particularly those who feel that their interests have been overlooked. By taking these steps, Republicans hope to rebuild trust and maintain their position as a major force in American politics.

Iran vows to press on with nuclear program

Iran has vowed to continue its nuclear program despite international pressure to halt it. The country's leaders have stated that the program is essential for the nation's energy needs and economic development. They have also emphasized that Iran is committed to transparency and will cooperate with international monitoring agencies. However, the program has raised concerns among some countries, particularly the United States, which has accused Iran of pursuing a nuclear weapons program. The international community is closely watching the situation, and there are ongoing discussions about how to address the concerns. Iran's stance is seen as a test of its resolve and its ability to navigate the complex international environment.

Move up value chain, call centers urged

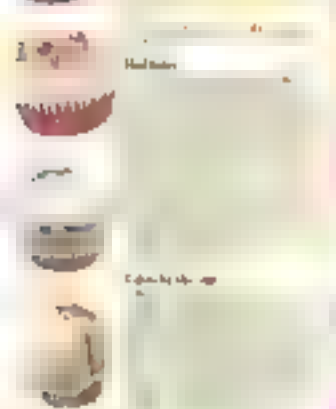

By [Name]

MANILA — Call centers in the Philippines are being urged to move up the value chain and provide more services beyond basic customer support. Industry leaders say that while the sector has grown rapidly, it remains largely in the low-value segment of the global outsourcing market. They call for investment in training and technology to enable call centers to take on more complex tasks such as sales, marketing, and product development. The move is seen as essential for the industry to remain competitive and to create higher-paying jobs for its workforce.

A teen flick—plus

ViewPeople
Drew Barrymore

Drill Sergeant is a teen flick that's not just a comedy but a comedy that's also a war movie. Barrymore plays a girl who's sent to a military boarding school. The movie is a comedy, but it's also a war movie. Barrymore plays a girl who's sent to a military boarding school. The movie is a comedy, but it's also a war movie.
